Not sure what to cook for dinner? Want to give your family a "heads down meal?" This stuff is so good, it'll bring dinner conversation to a halt when heads go down to focus on the plates...

Jason and Micki Luquire launched Luquire Family Foods in March to share his family's storied creole recipe. Carefully crafted by family matriarch, Josephine "Jo" Luquire, and inspired by the bounty of the land and sea around their home of Georgetown, SC, this simmer sauce remains true to a nearly half-century-old recipe. The Luquire family has cast their shrimp nets and frequented fish camps for generations and found inspiration to create a truly authentic recipe that balances spicy and sweet for a unique flavor that reflects the Carolina coast.

Perfect for busy weeknight dinners and gourmet gatherings, Carolina Creole combines in just 20 minutes with fresh local shrimp, chicken, sausage, or sautéed vegetables from The Pig. When served over rice or grits and topped with crumbled bacon, there is no finer Carolina dinner.

The ONLY grocery store with Carolina Creole today is The Pig, making local happen. Hurry in to eat locally tonight!
